CITY TRUSTEES

Annexation Election Called for Oct. 14th—Plans of Paul V. Tuttle Accepted for City Hall

All members present. A long list of demands was presented and referred. The order of business was suspended and the board took up the matter of a petition for annexation to Glendale of a portion of territory known as West Glendale and of territory lying north and west of Glendale city. It was referred to the city engineer and city attorney to report later, and afterwards both these officials declared it to be in due form. Mr. A. E. Ditch and others presented to the board a request to have additional territory added to that described in petition. Mr. Watson made a motion adopting a resolution providing for an election for the annexation of this territory to take place Oct 14, the same being adopted.

A petition signed by Mary Echols and others that Brand boulevard south of Sixth street be widened by addition of ten feet, was referred to the city attorney.

A petition signed by Ezra F. Parker and others asking that the width of the addition to this portion of Brand boulevard be seven feet on each side was also referred to city engineer with instructions to draft an ordinance of intention to widen Brand boulevard along lines of original proposition.

The public works committee reported that the proposed minor changes in the specifications for the city hall building had been made by the architects and approved by the committee. It was ordered that all bids for plans of city hall building be rejected except that of Paul V. Tuttle and that his plans and specifications be accepted. The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for construction of city hall building.

Bids for a portion of Louise street were opened and declared as follows: D. C. Howard, F. R. Sinclair, Peter L. Ferry.

Bids for the improvement of First street were opened and declared as follows: D. C. Howard, F. R. Sinclair Peter L. Ferry.

Reports of city officials were received and filed. The sum of $275.00 was ordered to be transferred from the dog tax fund to the street work fund. A communication was read from Andrew Carnegie saying he would give the $10,000 requested for library building; referred to library board.

The matter of palms and awnings on the east side of Brand boulevard between Third and Fourth streets came up and was discussed. Complaint had been made in regard to both by pedestrians claiming that they obstruct free passage along sidewalk, but merchants and business concerns there object to the removal of the trees, and as reported by marshal do not comply strictly with the ordinance in respect to awnings. Referred to police and sanitary committee. The subject of street work on Brand boulevard was referred to engineer to report at next meeting. The request of Brewster & Haviland for permission to add a pool and billiard room to their hotel, was referred to committee of the whole. In regard to request of chamber of commerce for room in the new city hall building, the committee reported that it would be impracticable to grant it.

The clerk was instructed to communicate with the board of supervisors in regard to establishing election precincts in Glendale and to state that this is not the proper time to do this, as new territory may soon be added and in addition to suggest consulting the city trustees in regard to the matter before action. The matter of improving the west half of Central avenue from Fourth street north by the county was referred to the city attorney who was requested to appear before the board of supervisors and protest at the proper time. The amount to be paid garbage collector was increased from $25 to $28 per month.

MARRIED—VAN ETTEN-BAILEY.

The marriage of Miss Sina Scott Bailey to Mr. Claire T. Van Etten, of Los Angeles, occurred at four o'clock, Thursday afternoon, August 31, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Black, on Kenneth Road. Rev. S. Lawrence Ward, D. D., pastor of the Presbyterian church of Glendale, of which both young people are members, performed the ceremony.

The bride was dressed in a white embroidered gown and carried white roses. She was attended only by her sister, Esther Lilian Black, who was dressed in pink and carried pink lilies.

Mrs. Fred Haskell played the Lohengrin wedding march as the bride descended the stairs to the parlor, where she was met by the groom.

The house was prettily decorated with asparagus fern and flowers, asters being the prevailing flower.

After refreshments were served, the young couple left on the evening train for Mendota, Ill., and Chicago. They will be at home about October 1, at 5300 Pasadena avenue, Los Angeles. Among the invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Scott and Miss Hossack, of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, Miss Mildred Armstrong, Winston Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haskell and daughters Virginia and Katherine, Mr. Harold Dwelle and Mr. Earl Daniels, of Los Angeles.

GLENDALE VALLEY IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

Although competing with the free concert given by the Glendale band there was a good attendance at the regular monthly meeting last Thursday evening. Miss Luella Moore played the opening piano solo and Miss R. F. Robinson gave a recitation, both numbers being encored. Later in the evening the audience was treated to a violin solo by Mr. George Barnes and to a piano selection by Miss Katherine Hobbs, both being well rendered and encored.

The principal feature of the evening was the address on the water question by Mr. Sondregger, the Los Angeles engineer, who holds high rank in his profession. Mr. Sondregger explained the origin of the water supply of Southern California in general and of this section in particular. He spoke of a very successful experiment made in the San Antonio wash above Pomona where by a system of ditches that spread the storm water instead of allowing it to run off in a single stream during a time of storm, it was conserved and served to supply the wells immediately below. He believed that something of this kind would work here, be comparatively inexpensive and in addition to adding largely to the water supply would help to solve the "storm water" problem.

Mr. Fred O'Brien followed Mr. Sondregger, speaking on the same subject and calling attention to the unsatisfactory water supply in the Valley View tract. In his opinion the Owens river water furnished the solution of the problem. Mr. H. L. Clotworthy being called upon, spoke in his usual entertaining and breezy manner, alluding to the movement now on foot for the annexation of West Glendale and advising the people to boost for it. A motion prevailed calling a valley picnic at Verdugo Park on Saturday, Sept. 9th (Admission Day) and a committee with Mr. J. W. Usilton, chairman, was appointed to arrange details. A motion also passed that the members in a body go to Burbank on the 20th to help celebrate the completion of the electric road.

THE TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Two installments of the tennis tournament for the championship of the San Fernando valley have already been played on the high school court, the first taking place last Saturday, the second, Labor Day.

Up to this time the play has been of a fair order, and the attendance has not been as large as it should have been. This tournament has proven the fact that several crack players have entered the valley since last year's play, probably the most prominent of these being Mr. Shook who won first honors in the men's singles and will compete next Saturday against Nat Brown, winner of last yaer's meet, for the challenge cup.

A summery of the play so far is as follows:

Saturday's play: Ladies singles—Miss May Richards beat Miss Alma Stone, 6-3, 7-5. Men's singles—Shook beat Fenson 3-6, 6-1, 6-3. Shook beat Davenport 6-3, 6-3. Morrow beat Whittaker 7-5, 6-4. Mixed doubles—Miss May Richards and Fenson beat Miss Alma Stone and Stanton 64, 6-0. Miss Eleanor Richards and Shook beat Miss Pearl Goode and Harry Brown 6-3, 6-4.

Monday's play: Junior singles—Ed Sadler beat Robertshaw 6-2, 6-3. Littell beat Gilhousen 3-6, 6-4, 6-1. Men's doubles—N. Brown and Davenport beat Whittaker and Stanton 6-2, 11-9 Finals, men's singles—N. Brown and Davenport beat Fenson and Shook 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. Stanton beat Bancroft and H. Brown by default. Semi-finals men's singles—Shook beat Morrow 7-5, 3-6, 6-3. Finals, men's singles—Shook beat Stanton 6-1, 6-1.

Next Saturday the tournament will be resumed. At this time the finals of the ladies' singles, the junior singles and mixed doubles will be played in addition to the challenge match between Shook and Nat Brown.

Saturday evening the usual tennis shirt waist dance will be held at the Country Club house with the directors as hosts. The prizes will be distributed at this time.

SUCCESSFUL HUNTERS.

A party consisting of Dr. Cheney, Harry Wildey and Wallace Tupper, the latter acting as guide, returned this week from a month's hunting trip on the head waters of Kern river. They had unusual success, bringing back as trophies the skins of one cinnamon and two black bears. They had venison in abundance all the time and brought back about two hundred pounds of jerked bear meat. The cinnamon bear was a big fellow weighing 900 pounds. Dr. Cheney had shot the animal and lost sight of it and a little while afterwards Tupper met the animal coming down the trail and brought it down at the second shot.

DEATH OF F. E. BUCKHOLTZ.

After an acute illness of only eight hours, Mr. F. E. Buckholtz died at his residence on Myrtle street, near Remington, Tuesday afternoon last. Although he had been in poor health for about three months, his death was unexpected up to the last day of his life. The immediate cause of his decease was cerebral hemorrhage of the brain, caused, it is believed, by long continued mental strain, as the deceased was a man of great activity, both mental and physical. Mr. Buckholtz was an associate of Mr. F. W. Pigg, the builder, who has erected so many houses in this section during the past year or two, being his foreman on nearly all of the jobs Mr. Pigg has been interested in. He was a charter member of the local Carpenters' Union, which he organized, and of which he was the head at the time of his death. With his family he came to California from Washington, D. C., about six years ago, and to Glendale a year ago last February. He was forty-six years of age. Mrs. Buckholtz and a daughter survive him. The funeral services will take place at the Pulliam undertaking parlors Friday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment at Forest Lawn.

CASA VERDUGO IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

This association held its regular meeting Friday evening of last week in the M. E. church. It had been advertised that the question of the storm water would be discussed, but the attendance was so small that not much was said in regard to the matter. Mr. G. B. Woodberry, city clerk of Glendale, was present and gave an account of the status of the matter, saying that in accordance with previous agreement there would probably be a mass meeting called soon to take some kind of action. He read a letter received from Maanger McMillan in which that official declined to agree on the part of the Pacific Electric Co. to do anything in connection with the people of this section in the way of general work for the protection of the banks of the wash. Mr. Stanton stated that in his opinion the railroad people intend to do considerable work on their own account to protect their interests, particularly the newly constructed Burbank line which parallels the wash for quite a distance.

The association completed its permanent organization by the election of the following officers: President, T. E. Stanton; first vice president, W. D. Kelly; second vice president, L. D. Oliver; secretary, Mr. Land; treasurer, Mr. Balthis.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church held their first meeting in the parlors of the new church Tuesday afternoon.

They spent the afternoon hemming table linen for the church dining room.

Mrs. Elmer Riggs, who was hostess of the afternoon, had a delightful surprise planned to reward their diligence, and at the end of the afternoon's sewing invited them into the ladies' parlor. Here were two long tables adorned with ferns and blossoms, and loaded with dainty refreshments.

The afternoon was a complete success and most thoroughly enjoyed by all.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIAL.

The Evangelistic Union of Glendale and Tropico is to give a social on the evening of September 22 at K. of P. hall. It is to be a general meeting of all the young people's societies of the valley, and all members of such and others are invited to attend.

WATER

Abstract of Comprehensive Report by Mr. H. B. Lynch

The following is an abstract of the very comprehensive and able report submitted to the trustees of Glendale in regard to the water question, by Manager Harry Lynch of the lighting department:

AVERAGE RATES AND CONDITIONS.

Almost all the larger cities and most of the smaller ones in Southern California own their water systems. Rates charged by municipally owned plants average 93c per month for 980 cubic feet, or .095 cents a cubic foot. Of privately owned plants the average minimum charge is $1.18 for 795 cubic feet or .14.8 cents a cubic foot.

The minimum rate in Glendale is $1.50 for 800 cubic feet, or 18.75 cents a hundred cubic feet.

As to the Glendale systems—the reservoirs are not high enough to give pressure. Distributing mains are not adequate. A large portion of the city, therefore, is at times without adequate fire protection or sufficient water for domestic use. The several companies operating independently cannot exercise proper economy of operation.

LOCAL SUPPLY.

The Verdugo Canon is supplying at present from all sources about 275 inches. During the comparatively dry period following the light rainfall of seasons from 1897 to 1904, the supply diminished greatly, falling to 150 inches. There is no doubt but that by development the output of 200 inches can be maintained during the driest periods.

"The amount of water is ample for the domestic supply of several times the number of people now served by it, and no uneasiness need be felt as to its adequacy to meet the domestic requirements of Glendale."

While the water was originally appurtenant to the land, much of it has been transferred to the Consolidated Water Co. and to the Verdugo Springs Water Co.

Wells are being pumped above and below the Verdugo Canon's works.

OWENS RIVER WATER.

The aqueduct water will probably reach the San Fernando Valley by January 1913. The quality of this water is unproven. The plans for distribution seem to be that the systems needed for supplying a community shall be constructed by Los Angeles at the expense of the district to be supplied. The people to be served are to build or acquire the systems through which the water reaches the consumer. No community shall acquire ownership in this water except by annexation to Los Angeles and by assuming their proportion of the bonded indebtedness of that city. Communities not becoming annexed can only be served by contracts to furnish water for limited periods, which contracts may or may not be renewed.

Water Consumption.

For domestic purposes it has been shown that where water is supplied without undue loss of leakage, and accurately metered, one inch is sufficient for the needs of about 100 inhabitants. One inch will irrigate from five to ten acres during the summer. A number of large orchards have private pumping plants in this section.

Income from Municipal Plants.

A careful analysis of figures available show that the average rate charged by municipal plants produces an income of about $5.30 per capita per year.

Cost of System in Glendale.

The present boundary of the city of Glendale includes some thirty miles of streets. The present pipe system is inadequate and would have to be replaced. Steel pipes of sufficient size to answer all purposes would cost approximately $2600 a mile. Cast iron pipes would cost probably $4500 a mile. These figures do not include meters which may be estimated at $15 each. The items going to make up the operating cost are: Interest, which in case of municipal bonds may be put at 4½ per cent; salaries and labor, fuel or power for pumping, maintenance, general expenses, depreciation. These expenses should come under $20,000 per year. In addition there would be at the end of five years an item of 3 per cent of bonded indebtedness to cover redemption of bonds.

PRACTICAL PHILANTHROPY OF PHILANTHROPIC COMMITTEE.

One morning last week word was received by Mrs. Charles E. Hutchinson, chairman of the Tuesday Afternoon Club's philanthropic committee, of a perfectly destitute case. It concerned a poor young Mexican mother who had taken refuge in a shack in the vicinity of Colorado street, between Glendale and Eagle Rock, where her baby was born. There was neither bed nor bedding, and she was without sufficient clothing for herself, and had none for the child.

By four o'clock that afternoon Mrs. Hutchinson, with the help of her able committee, had secured a bed and bedding, clothing for the mother and the wee baby, and a good stock of provisions.

It is easy to see that the work of this department is of a practical and beneficial nature, and goes far beyond the mere theory of philanthropy.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Next meeting will be held tonight (Friday) at I. O. O. F. Hall. All members urged to be present.

BAND CONCERT.

The crowd of citizens assembled in the neighborhood of the band stand at Fourth and Kenwood last Thursday evening to enjoy the free concert was suggestive of a city much larger than Glendale. All of the seats were filled and the sidewalks in the vicinity well lined with people. The band rendered an excellent program which was enjoyed greatly by the audience. These free concerts will be given every Thursday evening until further notice.

For floor space in the coming merchants' exhibit see Mrs. Raymond Chase, Fourth street. The K. P. hall is the place and the second week in October the time. Given under auspices of Chapter L. P. E. O.

Satisfactory progress has been made in all plans connected with the merchants' exhibit to be given the second week in October. Only six spaces for booths remain to be rented and already exhibits have been ordered for the display.

You would be surprised if you knew the number of Glendale people who have already taken advantage of the bargains Carney is offering during his big ten days shoe sale.

People here have discovered that they can buy shoes in their home town cheaper than in Los Angeles because the shoe merchant here has practically no expense compared with Los Angeles stores. One month's rent there is more than one year's rent here in Glendale. Leave your money in your home town.

VALLEY PICNIC.

Remember the Valley Picnic tomorrow (Saturday) at Verdugo Park. It will be under the management of the Glendale Valley Improvement Association and is a purely "Get together" affair. There will be games, refreshments, dancing, etc. You can bring your own lunch or get some on the grounds. Everybody will be welcomed.

Mr. G. W. Sanford of Sycamore Canon caught a skunk in a steel trap a few nights ago. After skinning the animal he used the remains for a bait and caught a coyote. Mr. Sanford has a valuable robe made of the skins of wild cats and coyotes he has caught.

GLENDALE, CAL., SEPTEMBER 8, 1911

Answering an inquiry from a correspondent: A school director cannot legally have any monetary interest in any deal or contract with the district which he represents.—Ed.

We notice in one of our exchanges a report of warrants drawn in payment of services to the city. One of them is for a considerable sum for "Notary services," paid to a city official. We shall watch with interest for a recall election in that town in the near future, based on the "illegality" of the official's action.

TWO POINTS OF VIEW.

A party of people calling themselves the Southern California Editorial Association, returned last week from a junketing expedition to Owens River Valley where a contemporary thinks he was served with a taste of Los Angeles aqueduct water. Whoever it may have been that administered this innocent and unsuspecting brother of the quill with the bewildering "dope" he evidently swallowed, deserves su[b]jection to the tender mercies of ou[r] Recorder's Court.—Tropico Interu[r]ban.

If you wish to know just what kin[d] of water Los Angeles will secure fro[m] the Owens river, take a ride up to th[e] intake and look it over. Instead [of] water "fresh from the mountain trib[u]taries, unpolluted and undefiled," [a]s we have been lead to believe, th[e] river itself, after flowing sixty mil[es] from its mountain source, and catc[h]ing all of the drainage from the valle[y] irrigation, is turned bodily into the i[n]take, which is located in a field whic[h] is white with alkali. Pure mountai[n] water, yes, nit.—Lankershim Laconi[c]

A MILLION DOLLAR PIPE DREA[M]

The Tropico Sentinel is informe[d] that this paper holds to precisely t[he] same position which its editor as [a] citizen and a taxpayer has maintaine[d] for twenty-five years or so, which [is] that the water interests of this se[c]tion should be consolidated. We a[re] not wedded to the idea of municip[al] ownership, but unless private co[m]panies give satisfactory service [at] fair rates, municipal ownership wou[ld] seem to be the ultimate solution [of] the problem. Our plea which th[e] Sentinel criticises in a rather billious mood, was for a larger municipality so that whatever may in the near future seem desirable to the people of this section, in regard to this important subject, its attainment may be made possible by united action. As for this municipality or any other paying the Consolidated Water Company a million dollars for its franchises or anything else, that is a "pipe dream" left over from the consolidation campaign of last winter, when it was created purely for political effect by the anti-consolidationists.

LABOR.

We have just passed a holiday dedicated to Labor. It has been observed very generally; in cities by parades, picnics in the parks and in the various ways suggested by individual preferences. The laborer who really appreciates his holidays has perhaps spent the day at home doing some little chores to "make his home more attractive," or he has borrowed or hired a horse and wagon and taken the wife and the children out for a day in the country; glad to be away from the noise and the too familiar sights of the crowded city and delighted to be out in the comparative silence which country surroundings afford and nearer for the day to the heart of nature. There is another type of worker whose idea of a holiday consists of "killing time" by some means of excitement that is far from uplifting. There has been much talking done about labor and laborers, some of it wise and some of it foolish. Much has been said and written about the "cause of labor" and the "rights of the working man" and the tendency of this output usually is to create or strengthen the impression that the laborer is a class apart and distinct from the majority of men. In America we pride ourselves on having no "classes" such as exist in the old world; there is a constant mixing of the upper and the lower stratas of society so that a man's "class" seems no sooner established than he rises from it or falls into another. The penniless toiler of today may be the millionaire of tomorrow, while down from the topmost rung of the ladder of success, the millionaire may tumble over night. So the building up of classes is worse than useless and the work of making more distinct the line of demarcation can only be deplored as something leading to an end that is undesirable. If it was not for the ceaseless propaganda of agitation on the part of uneasy agitators on the platform and in the press, the days of the true democracy would come much more quickly in the natural process of evolution as men become better acquainted one with another. The common definition of "laborer" is too circumscribed; it is too generally understood as comprising only the laborer for wages, when as a matter of fact many of the men in business for themselves and acknowledging no employer, and many a man who is the employer of others, is the hardest worker of them all. Much has been said about the "rights of labor," but it would be more profitable to talk about "the rights of men," and concede at all times that all men have "rights," whether we agree in that rash assertion that "all men are born equal" or not. A minister in one of our local churches preached an excellent sermon last Sunday on "Labor;" such a sermon as it would do the men good to hear who flount at the churches which they never enter. One point which he emphasized was the dignity, the beneficence of labor, its absolute necessity for the development of our human natures into higher than that of the mere animal. This idea of the blessing of labor is not often enough in our minds or our work would be more inspiring. When the time comes that the fact is generally recognized that labor is a blessing, that it is something not to be shirked with honor by any human being and that the workers of the world are confined to no class or condition [illegible]

Horned Hercules Beetle.

The island of Dominica is the home and natural habitat of the hercules beetle (Dynastes hercules), the very largest known species of the coleoptera or beetle family. Full grown specimens of this gigantic representative of the hard winged bug family average six inches in length from the tip of their pincers to the termination of the wing covers. It has a long black horn growing out of a head which is even darker than the horn itself. On its lower surface the horn is covered with a thick setting of gold colored bristles, which the entomologists say are used by the insect in capturing its prey. Another and shorter but more powerful horn grows out from beneath, the two forming a powerful pair of pincers. The creature has six powerful legs, each armed with claws. The elytra or wing covers are of a dapple gray color and the underparts of the body black. Taken all together, it is a formidable creature, with strength sufficient to catch and hold a bird of the size of the English sparrow.

Back of Bad Luck.

Heaven sends us our good luck; we make our bad. A young contractor, careful, doing good work, always on his job, climbed a bit in the course of ten years and, with his prosperity, had a comfortable, happy family. There came a chance for some building much bigger than he had ever done. He wanted it. He wanted it so much that he bid way down—too far down, as he came to realize after he got the award. So he went on a hunt for subcontractors who, wanting business desperately, like him, would take desperate chances, like him, and he found them. He sublet excavation, masonry, carpentry, everything he could, farming it all out in dozens of different lots. But there was a stern architect, with an eagle eye and a heart cold for everything but his duty, and he began to reject work, piece after piece. Contractor all broke up; the fruits of ten years blown away upon the winds.—New York Press.

An Anecdote of Handel.

On one occasion Handel was caught in a shower of rain and, being unprovided with an umbrella, was obliged to seek shelter in a blacksmith's forge. Either Handel was in a silent mood or else the blacksmith showed no conversational symptoms, for in a little while the latter began hammering away at his anvil, accompanying his work with a song. He little thought the use his visitor was making of him and his anvil, for it is said that Handel was listening all the time to the strokes of the hammering on the anvil, which, by producing two harmonic sounds, according in time and tune with the tune the man sang, formed a bass accompaniment. Handel, on reaching home, remembered the air and the hammer accompaniment. He wrote down both, and so we owe to a shower of rain the composition known as "The Harmonious Blacksmith."

Charles Kean's Afflictions.

Charles Kean, the actor, could not pronounce the consonants "m" and "n." In the first scene with Jarvis in "The Gamester" he began by inquiring, "Well, Jarvis, what says the world of me? I'll tell thee what it says. It calls me a false friend, a faithless husband, a cruel father—in one short word, it calls me Galester!" In Shylock he was wont to say:

"You take by life
When do you take the beans whereby I live."

But his most unfortunate slip occurred in the last line of "Money," where Evelyn says that in order to enjoy the good things of life we require "plenty of money." In this situation Kean always brought the curtain down with a roar by sarcastically remarking that the one thing necessary to complete their happiness is "plenty of putty!"

Insulted.

"My husband has a remarkable collection of old curiosities," said Mrs. Bilkins, with an air of pride.

"Indeed!" said Miss Sharpenough. "Was he collecting when he married you?"

"Why, yes," replied Mrs. Bilkins innocently.

"That's what I thought," remarked the other spitefully.

And then Mrs. Bilkins saw what her dear friend meant. They meet as strangers now.

Anniversary Thoughts.

"Hubby, dear, do you know that we will have been married ten years next Tuesday?"

"Yes; I realize that we are getting along and should begin to economize for the needs of the future."

"It is not the future that I am thinking about, but the present."—New York Herald.

Truly Remarkable.

"Quite a remarkable thing happened at the banquet last night."

"Did somebody tell a story that was new?"

"No; the stories were all old, but one of the speakers who said he had nothing to say sat down immediately after saying it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Short Story.

"My new novel is a story of married life," said Scribbler.

"Boil it down," admonished the publisher. "Married life is a short story nowadays."—Philadelphia Record.

HO! TROUBLED HEARTS!

THE MASTER SPEAKETH

Balm For Wounded Hearts, Comfort For Sorrowing Ones.

PASTOR RUSSELL'S SERMON YESTERDAY.

Aug. 13.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle took for his text today the words of Jesus, "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in Me" (John xiv. 1).

As usual there was a good crowd and closest attention. He said in part:—

The world does well to keep up a cheerful outward demeanor. Nevertheless, there is great force and weight to St. Paul's words to the effect that the whole creation is groaning and travailing in pain together waiting for "Messiah's Kingdom and its long promised blessings, to lift the curse of sin and death and to restore to mankind the smile of the Father's favor. Reason though they may that there is no personal God—that there is merely a blind god of nature, an evolutionary force, nevertheless, deep down in the heart, men believe that there is a God. Almost unconsciously the mind attributes to Him Wisdom, Justice and Power—but little of Love or sympathy with humanity and its frailties.

This very intuitive knowledge of God is closely associated with many human troubles. As the root of nearly every trouble, perhaps deep below the surface, is sin—disobedience to recognized principles of righteousness, and a fearful looking for of retribution, and an uncertainty as to what it will mean. This is true, not only of many Christians, but frequently true of others who have made no profession.

A World of Troubled Hearts.

This troubled heart-condition does not always show upon the surface. Sometimes the troubled heart seeks the theatre to try to forget its troubles. Sometimes its owner is immersed in sinful pleasure-seeking in endeavor to drown some haunting grief. Sometimes relief is sought through intoxicating liquors or narcotics; sometimes in suicide. One cannot surely know that the merry laugh or witty joke or cheery song do not come from a troubled heart. We are sure that they do, in many instances, for frequently those who have been indulging in merriment have committed suicide a few minutes thereafter, leaving messages that their hearts have been heavily burdened, while outwardly cheerful.

We have much sympathy with these sorrow laden hearts. As a race we are walking "through the valley of the shadow of death" day by day. On every hand we have reminders of this—grief, disappointment, headache, heartache, etc. If we are measurably free from pain ourselves, yet have sympathy, we are pained for others.

In our troubles we, sooner or later, realize the lack of human sympathy or, at least, its impotency. Feeling our helplessness we instinctively look to our Creator. In the hour of trouble remarkably few doubt the existence of God.

Losing Our Heart Troubles.

The Father knows your heart troubles. He wishes the burden to be there until you appreciate its weight—until you will be ready to cry to Him that you are sinsick, weary troubled, and above all, hungering and thirsting for righteousness and desiring reconciliation to Him—the smile of His Face. He has not waited for all of this to take place before making provision for you. He has anticipated your needs, your longings, your necessities. He has already provided the Redeemer who is mighty to save. Believe that Divine Love, as represented in the Redeemer sent of God, is exhaustless, boundless, sufficient for all your needs. If you will accept of the Divine arrangement through Christ, your heart troubles may be at an end. You will still have troubles in the flesh, weaknesses, aches and pains, but your heart will be joyful and happy in a fellowship Divine.

You need not go to any earthly priest but, as the Master said, go to the Father in secret. Go not in your own name or merit, but in the merit of the Redeemer. Go Scripturally, claiming Him as your Advocate and appealing in His Name for forgiveness provided by Divine mercy—to cover all the sins of the past and provide for all the imperfections unwillingly yours for the future, even to the end of the way. Coming thus, Jesus becomes your Priest, your Advocate. "We have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous" (I John ii. 1). Let us "come with courage to the Throne of grace that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in every time of need" (Hebrews iv. 16).

We cannot give this message to the entire world at present, even as Jesus could not do so. These must await the inauguration of the glorious Kingdom of Messiah soon to be ushered in, when "every blind eye shall be opened and every deaf ear unstopped."

Clever Paris Beggars.

Begging is forbidden on the Paris boulevards. But one day recently a pale, poorly dressed man was seen humbly approaching various pedestrians. He was evidently not used to begging, and as he told his pathetic story without the requisite boldness people passed him by unnoticed. A man dressed in black stepped up to him and showed him a card. He carried a thick stick and wore a heavy mustache and thick boots, which are the outward and visible signs, with a multicolored ribbon in the buttonhole, of a detective in plain clothes.

"Now, then, get out of this or I'll run you in," he said roughly. Then in a lower tone, "Poor chap!" and furtively he gave the man some silver.

People had seen him do it, and, cheering the kind hearted policeman, they, too, gave to the poor beggar. A few minutes afterward in a side street the two men divided the spoils and moved off separately to ply their trade elsewhere. The detective wasn't a detective at all, but a beggar made up for the part.

Finally Lost It.

"I may have lost my golf ball," thought the old man as he crept on all fours round the bush into which it had rolled, "but I will not lose my temper."

So he continued to grovel and grope and to wear a persuasive, patient smile. His knees bagged, his back ached horribly, and the bush bestowed upon his hands a generous quantity of thorns. But he refused to discard his smile and kept on repeating:

"No; I will not lose my temper. I will not."

Suddenly the elusive ball caught his eye. Flopping flat, he stretched his hands toward it, grasped it among its nest of thorns and gingerly withdrew it.

"Hoity-toity!" exclaimed an old woman behind him. "You ought to be ashamed, bird nesting at your time of life!"

And then he did lose his temper.—London Answers.

Defining a Boundary Line.

In 1847 Rufus Choate appeared in behalf of parties whose rights were affected by the boundary line between Massachusetts and Rhode Island, thus described in the agreement:

"Beginning," etc., "thence to an angle on the easterly side of Watuppa pond, thence across said pond to the two rocks on the westerly side of said pond and near thereto, thence westerly to the buttonwood tree in the village of Fall River."

In his argument, commenting on the boundary, Mr. Choate thus referred to this part of the description: "A boundary line between two sovereign states described by a couple of stones near a pond and a buttonwood sapling in a village! The commissioners might as well have defined it as starting from a blue jay, thence to a swarm of bees in hiving time and thence to 500 foxes with firebrands tied to their tails."—Minneapolis Journal.

When Parasols Began.

Parasols when they first came into use must have been cumbersome. Henri Estienne, writing in 1578, speaks of a parasol as capable generally of sheltering four persons from the sun. And when they diminished in circumference the material still remained of the heaviest. Red velvet parasols, with heavy gold fringes, were carried by ladies of fashion in the days of Louis XIV. At that time it was possible when crossing a bridge in Paris to hire a parasol at one end and deposit it at the other, the charge for the accommodation being a sou. Under the regency fashion went to the other extreme. Men's parasols folded into the shape of a three cornered hat and could thus be carried elegantly under the arm. Ladies' parasols were hinged, so that they could slip into the pocket, for ladies had pockets then.—London Spectator.

Longest Indian Word.

The longest Indian word on record is the following, that was printed in an Indian Bible in 1661:

Wutappesittukqussunnoohwehtunkquoh.

It signifies "kneeling down to him." When the Rev. Cotton Mather, primitive Boston's Puritan pastor, first saw this consolidated phrase it prompted him to jestingly observe that the words of the language must have been growing ever since the dispersion at Babel.—New York Telegram.

CHAPTER XXII.

She led him back into the other wing of the house, and he frowned as he noted that the room into which he was shown adjoined the suit Lillian occupied. Inside the room he examined the communicating door. There was no key in it; but, stooping down to inspect the bolt, he could see that it was locked, and, with a nod of satisfaction, he made haste to get to rest. He had scarcely begun to undress, however, when the communicating door opened, and Lillian, clad in the same kimono in which she had before entered his private apartments at the Esplanade in New York, came in, laughing as if her act were but a childish prank.

"Have you no discretion whatever?" Kelvin demanded, with some impatience.

"Not much," she answered gayly. "What is the use of it in a poky, humdrum place like this, where everybody is deaf, dumb and blind? Come, I want to show you something."

"I'll look at it in the morning," returned Kelvin.

"In the morning won't do," she insisted. "It will be too late then."

She insisted so strongly that Kelvin finally went with her into her own apartments. She went to her desk and brought a letter.

"See," she said, "I have found a note written by George Blagg to Ben White, the father of your precious friend Elsie while he was still gardener. Blagg has been contracting for a million rifles, for one thing." As she spoke she seemed to be listening intently. Phillip reached out his hand for the missive. She thrust it quickly behind her back and looked up at him with bantering eyes. "Is that the way you express your thanks?" she playfully protested. "You shan't have it until you show yourself more grateful than that." And she pursed up her lips.

With something of reluctance Phillip bent forward to give her the stipulated kiss, and as he did so she suddenly threw her arms about his neck. At that instant the hall door opened wide at the hand of Lucy, and Henry Breed stalked in, followed by Dr. Zelphan and Herbert Rensselaer and his aunt. Phillip and Lillian instantly sprang apart, but it was too late. The tableau had been seen. Henry Breed was the first to find his voice.

"Lucy told us that Lillian wished to see us in her room and led the way," he observed dryly, "but Lucy seems to have been mistaken."

"She was," asserted Lillian coolly, "but since you are here I may as well tell you a bit of news, grandfather. You may announce tomorrow that the long standing secret engagement between Phillip and myself is to culminate in an immediate wedding. We were just discussing the date. I think about the first of next month will suit us best, won't it, Phillip?" and her hand sought his.

Phillip, half confused, half angry, put as good a face upon the matter as he could and agreed, with every appearance of suavity, that the first was an ideal date. Having announced their intention, the surprised couple were able to look their captors in the face with more or less of cool defiance. In Herbert's eyes Kelvin saw grave remonstrance. Dr. Zelphan was openly chuckling. Henry Breed was smiling and rubbing his withered old palms together. The shocked and horrified Mrs. Rensselaer finally found her motive power and, sailing into the room, took Lillian's arm under her own and marched away with her to her own apartments. Dr. Zelphan was the first to congratulate Phillip, shaking hands with him heartily.

"It is a wonderful match," said he with sardonic glee, "an ideal match."

Henry Breed delightedly patted Kelvin on the shoulder and called him son, and it never seemed to cross his mind that there had been anything in the circumstances to incur his disapproval, if not his anger. Rensselaer lingered long enough to protest.

"I say, old man," said he, "you might have been fair enough to give a fellow a correct tip when I asked you in the first place. You've let me make an ass of myself. I finally gave in to the aunt and proposed to Miss Breed not long ago. I—I wish you happiness."

Kelvin looked enigmatically into Rensselaer's eyes, abruptly laughed aloud and then, wheeling, turned into his own room.

Stalwart soldiers surrounded the White House grounds in lines two deep. From the gates to the main entrance the way was lined upon both sides with bronzed, gray bearded nondescripts, who stood slouchily in their olive green khaki and who had nothing of the bearing of soldiers in their attitude. They were a strange lot, full 500 of them, and yet any one disposed to laugh at the awkward line had only to look into the stern succession of mirthless eyes to know that here was dogged fighting blood. Already throughout the length and breadth of the land there had been sufficient clashes to set citizen against soldier and soldier against citizen, and recruits that but the day before yesterday had spat at a uniform and yesterday had been driven by necessity into the employ of the army today found themselves arrayed against their former comrades and spat at the plain citizenry.

Within the White House there were throngs of those who deemed that they had a right to inquire, to argue, to protest, to denounce. Day after day Kelvin, sitting in calm pomp, with his two huge, gaudily liveried negroes behind him, enigmatically disposed of one agitated patriot after another.

Just now Kelvin was entertaining a delegation picked by himself. They were his cabinet officers, and they were pale and nervous to a man. Added to them were two strangely out of place groups, the one consisting of Henry and Lillian Breed, Jens Nelson and Dr. Zelphan and the other of Rollins and Elsie White. All of these had been admitted by a private door. The arrival of the latter two groups was disconcerting to Phillip at the moment, although, after a slight period of cogitation, he had ordered them both admitted. Rollins and Elsie White came last, and the moment they had entered Phillip ordered the door to be relocked. He had been upon the point of making an important announcement to his waiting and apparently prepared cabinet, and now, his small audience once more quiet, he raised his hand impressively, but before he could speak Elsie White hurried forward to him.

"Look in your desk quickly, but carefully!" she cried. "An infernal machine is concealed there, timed to explode at twelve!"

She was deathly pale. There were dark rings under her eyes. Evidently she had passed a sleepless night. Phillip, obeying his habit of mentally ignoring sudden and agitated thoughts that he might consider them in forced calmness, looked down upon her compassionately, and the moment for which Elsie had waited all these years had at last arrived. Today she stood nearer to him in affection than any other living creature. Love had come to him at last. Well, there was still time. He had fought and he had won. The moment of his triumph was at hand, and with the fruits of that triumph he would crown love. He glanced at the clock. It was then barely 10. Jens Nelson had started hastily toward the door, but now he returned to the side of Dr. Zelphan.

"According to that, we have plenty of time," Phillip said calmly.

"Look!" Elsie frantically insisted. "The machine might be faulty. It was timed for 12 because it is known that you never leave until 1, but there is danger this very second. Every act of your daily routine has been studied, and in a half dozen places these things lie in wait for you. Here is a list of them." And she gave him a paper. "Moreover, today at noon there will be flashed from one end of the country to the other by telegraph and by wireless George Blagg's command to begin fighting. He has an immense secret army ready awaiting this word. Only a small proportion of the men are armed, but they intend to take their weapons from the soldiers and capture the states simultaneously from coast to coast."

"How do you know these things?" Kelvin demanded.

What little color there had been in Elsie's face left it suddenly. Even her lips were as white as paper. "I cannot tell you," she murmured faintly.

Kelvin nodded his head. He surmised that this vast conspiracy had Ben White as one of its weak arms.

"But hurry, Phillip, hurry!" pleaded Elsie, using his familiar name unconsciously. "If you find there what I have told you, you may know that all the rest is true."

"It is probably true enough," replied Phillip calmly. "Herbert, I had wished you to be here when I made my announcement, but you know what it is, as do the others of my cabinet, and what your share in it is to be. I shall excuse you for the time being. Wire at once to every military force under your command to be in readiness for this uprising."

One of the attendants opened the private door and let Herbert out. Kelvin stooped and opened every drawer of his desk on either side, but found nothing. He turned to Elsie with a slight smile, but she was on her knees now in front of the desk, with her ear applied to it.

"Search further," she insisted. "I hear something ticking."

Again Kelvin looked through the drawers and found nothing unusual.

"Pull out the bottom one on this side and look underneath it," she directed, with now almost frantic insistence.

Kelvin did so. Under the right hand bottom drawer, in the six inches of inclosed space left beneath it and the floor, he found a wooden box. Applying his ear to it, he detected a faint ticking. He handed it to one of the negroes.

"Have this removed to some safe place at once," he ordered.

"'Deed, no—not me!" protested the quaking voice of Peavey as he very, very gently slid the box on the desk and then sprang away from it. "Ah's suttainly boun' an' 'termined to be planted in mah grave whole, Ah is!"

Sam, though a curious ashen gray with fear, picked up the box, but one of the big officers, a white man, took it quietly from his hands and went out the door with it.

Kelvin turned slowly to his cabinet. "Gentlemen," he began, "the United States is in a condition of absolute anarchy."

"Wait a minute," suddenly quavered the shrill voice of Henry Breed. "Wait a half hour, Phillip. I wouldn't believe Jens, and I didn't bring that robe along."

Jens looked at him with a curious smile. Breed had not been invited to this gathering. Jens had brought him perforce.

Phillip held up his hand for silence. "The country is in a state of absolute anarchy," he repeated. "It is necessary that a radical change in our entire social system be inaugurated at once to save us from riot, bloodshed and starvation." His eyes sought a typewritten sheet lying on the desk before him. "Now, therefore, I, the chief executive of the nation, issue the following proclamation: That all public utilities and private enterprises are hereby confiscated by the government for the benefit of the government and the people; that all present owners and managers of these enterprises shall remain in their present employments and conduct these enterprises for the government; that all factories, mills, stores and establishments of commerce of whatsoever nature which have ceased operation be immediately reopened and all seekers of employment be given work to the full capacity of these plants. The government will insure the payment of wages, will become responsible for all liabilities and become the holder of all assets. All holdings of cash and of stocks, bonds or other securities, except those reposing in banks, hereby become the property of the government. All banks, whether national or private, are hereby appointed and taken over as branches of the governmental treasury, and no money shall be paid out without official order. All factories, mills and enterprises of whatsoever nature, having started work at once, will issue, until further adjustment, time checks at the previous rates of employment, which time checks shall be taken in payment by all merchandise concerns, the same as legal tender, until the government shall have time for adjustment. Every able bodied man in the United States between the ages of twenty and sixty is hereby ordered to return to his previous employment, or, if previously without employment, to apply at the nearest center of industry. Any able bodied person, as described, found idle within one week after this proclamation, without valid excuse, shall be arrested and imprisoned. Any citizen found armed within twenty-four hours after this proclamation shall be shot for treason without trial.

"To all the foregoing I have hereunto set my hand and seal.

"PHILLIP KELVIN, Emperor."

A lawn fete was given under the auspices of the Epworth League of this church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Pratt on Glendale avenue, last night. The affair was well attended. A program was rendered and refreshments were served.

There will be the regular services at this church next Sunday. In the morning and evening the pastor, Rev. W. C. Botkin will preach. In the evening between the Epworth League and the church services Rev. Botkin will use the stereopticon in a very unique manner.

New Arrival is Live Wire

Mr. J. Herbert Smith, who has lately bought a large interest in the Tropico Mercantile Co., is proving to be a live wire in the business world of this place. One of ihs first moves was to give notice that the store would not be open on any part of Sunday, and his example has been generally followed by other concerns here. Mr. Smith comes to Southern California from San Jose where he has been in business for some time and proposes to "grow up with the country" right here.

BIG MASS MEETING HELD.

Under the auspices of the Tropico chamber of commerce a mass meeting was held in Logan's hall on San Fernando road Tuesday evening. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the water and annexation questions in addition to other minor subjects besides getting together for a good time.

The affair was largely attended and in every way the evening was a great success. The following were the principal speakers: A. W. McKinney, who represented the chamber of commerce of Los Angeles; Lorin A. Handley, city clerk of Los Angeles, who talked on "Consolidation." State Senator Leslie R. Hewitt of Los Angeles, the subject of whose talk was "Owens River Water." Rev. J. H. Henry and other Tropico citizens also gave short addresses, which were well received. During the evening several musical numbers were given by local talent.

CONGREGATIONAL SERVICES.

For some time there has been a feeling that there was a need of a Sunday school and church on the West Side. As the Congregationalists have no organization in Glendale they may undertake this work for there are quite a number of Congregational families in this place.

Arrangements have been made to hold services for the next three Sundays, September 10, 17 and the 24th. The services will be held at 4:30 p. m. in the K. of P. hall, Brand boulevard near Third street. Rev. E. H. Willisford, Ph. D., of Los Angeles, will conduct the services. Doctor Willisford is a graduate of Hillsdale college, Hillsdale, Mich., and of the University of Nebraska, and has held several important pastorates. He is said to be a strong and interesting speaker. The public is cordially invited to these services. The interest shown in these services will determine the future action of those promoting the meetings.

CASA VERDUGO

Andy Robertson, whose home is at the Pepper Tree Inn and who serves his county in the clerk's office, Los Angeles, has returned from a two weeks' vacation a portion of which was spent at Catalina and the balance on the Irvine ranch near El Toro visiting relatives. He resumed work Saturday last and at noon left for San Diego with the Shriners' special which carried a number of Shriners down to the Bay City to initiate a large class into the mysteries of the order.

A PERFECT VACATION.

That is what Miss Emma Williams, of North Central avenue, declares she has enjoyed. Accompanied by Mrs. Eva Barnes and Miss Eleanor and Miss Kathryn Clemons, of Pasadena, and Miss Sue Pyle, of Los Angeles, she left Glendale on June 20 for an extensive auto trip through the state of California.

Their car was a Stoddard-Dayton (20), and was driven through their entire course from June 20 to September 3 by a seventeen-year-old girl, Miss Kathryn Clemons. Furthermore, the party traveled without a mechanician or masculine escort of any kind.

Their first stop was at Hotel Potter, Santa Barbara. From there they went through Lompoc, and from Lompoc to El Pizarro, famous for its beautiful nineteen-mile drive along the beach. They passed through Indian Valley and Jolan, stopped at Santa Cruz, and visited the State Reservation Park in the Big Basin. After visiting Camp Curry, Palo Alto and San Francisco they journeyed to Greenwood Park, on the Russian River, where the party spent an interesting and eventful month, during which time they thoroughly explored Lake County. At the end of the month they started for Lake Tahoe by way of Santa Rosa, Placerville and Folsom, stopping at Tallac, and finally arriving at Al Tahoe, where they enjoyed seven days of glorious scenery and seven nights of moonlight on the water.

Following this, they crossed the Sierras and went down the Carson grade into Reno, a city of white houses, despite its reputation.

From Reno they went to Truckee, and then to Emigrant's Gap, journeying to Sacramento. They left Sacramento for Berkeley, where they remained a week. A short return visit was made to San Francisco, and then a pleasant week was passed at Palo Alto.

During the return trip they went through San Juan, Jolan, Los Olivas and Stanley Park, after which they arrived in Glendale Sunday, September 3.

A GREAT BALL GAME.

The ball game at the Park on Labor Day, between the Verdugo Park team and the Hollywood boys, was a record-breaker. From start to finish the teams proved to be evenly matched. At the end of the ninth inning the score stood 3 to 3, and the game continued until fourteen innings were played, when the home team made a run. There have only been four or five such games in Southern California this year.

A. E. VOELKER IMPROVING.

Mr. A. E. Voelker, deaf mute, residing in West Glendale, who was run over on the S. P. track by a motor, about three weeks ago, is now rapidly improving. About ten days ago he was taken to the hospital for medical treatment and after remaining there five days improved so much that he was brought home, where under the care of Mrs. Voelker he is rapidly coming around to his normal condition.

ELECTRIC ROAD TO BURBANK.

Last Wednesday morning the first car carrying passengers ran from Los Angeles to Burbank over the electric road just completed. On its return it was well loaded with Burbankers who made the round trip to Glendale and return. Cars run hourly at present. Round trip fares between Burbank and Glendale 25 cents, Burbank and Los Angeles 40 cents. Big preparations are being made for the celebration to be held at Burbank on the 23rd.

WILL TRY TO REMOVE FENCE.

A committee consisting of F. H. Davis, M. M. Eshelman and A. L. Bancroft has been appointed by the chamber of commerce of Tropico to take up the matter of endeavoring to have the whitewashed fence on either side of the Pacific Electric tracks at Tropico, removed. This committee will meet with Superintendent Shoup of the P. E. company at 10 o'clock Friday morning and will try to arrange for the removal of this unsightly inconvenience.

YOUNG WOMAN APPLIES FOR PROTECTION.

Wednesday last a young woman about twenty years of age appealed to Officer Everett for protection and assistance. According to her story, her home is in San Diego, from which place she came a week ago on invitation to visit her sister, the wife of R. Morris, the tailor. She said that Morris had forcibly ejected her from the house the previous night, threatening to throw her trunk after her. She was without money. A small amount was raised for her and her fare paid to Los Angeles, where she laid her case before the Associated Charities.
